

Job description

Sessional Trainer

We are seeking experienced trainers to deliver Micro Rainbow training on a sessional basis. We deliver training both virtually and face-to-face, and welcome applications from experienced trainers who could deliver via one or both of these methods.

Micro Rainbow's training is varied covering a range of topics that relate to LGBTQI matters - LGBTQ asylum, LGBTQI migrant housing and homelessness. If you are interested in delivering training on these topics, you should be able to demonstrate a robust understanding of LGBTQI, and/or asylum and/or homelessness issues, and should be confident to positively challenge participants in a training setting, particularly relating to pre-existing views that normalise and justify LGBTQIphobia.

You should be able to demonstrate excellent presentation skills, have an awareness of different learning styles, and demonstrate an understanding of the importance of facilitating interactive, engaged training that encourages attendees to actively participate.

We've worked with a diverse range of organisations in the private, public and voluntary sectors and all have reported high satisfaction rates, increased knowledge and confidence and feel more equipped to support their LGBTQI clients.

We are a friendly, supportive and collaborative team and would enjoy the opportunity to work with other like-minded individuals who are motivated to deliver life changing training.

Job description

The Role

Micro Rainbow is seeking 2 experienced trainers to deliver interactive online and face-to-face training sessions and workshops to individuals and organisations wanting to improve their confidence and knowledge of LGBTQI, asylum and housing matters.
